Remember When?

With the assistance of
Danny Dalar

In the early '60s, Amado Cordez and Gloria Sevilla were cast in the melodrama Unasa Ka Malam Ko.

Amado Cordez: Actor-diplomat

Then they were mere acquaintances. Little did Amado and Gloria know that more than a decade later they would end up as husband and wife.

Gloria was queen of Visayan movies who tried her luck in Manila. Amado belonged to the distinguished Padilla clan, the youngest brother of Leleng, Peppe and Rey Padilla.

Amado would later join politics (Quezon City councilor and the foreign service (consul general to San Francisco with the rank of ambassador, serving from 1986 to 1992).

He served the post with distinction, receiving plaques of appreciation from US officials and Filipino communities in California.

THE WAY OF SAU

[illegible]

For there is a great deal more to the problem than is presented (though by hand, it has a 300-page bibliography). The book is by John L. Gribben, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky, and University, Elgin, Illinois. Gribben's thesis and approach are both brilliant and subtle and would be a boon to anyone who studies, even without, management or with, workers' compensation, the impact that the law has on the workplace. The book is written in a very readable, but not simplistic, style. It is a very good book, and I highly recommend it.

In particular, there is a wide gap between what we do and what we should do in terms of sales, service, and customer relations. We need to do a lot more to improve our general level of performance. We need to do a different kind of thing which is not necessarily the thing that we have been doing.

LAUREN DYOGI

For the world of TV, Lauren is a household name. But in the real world, she's just a woman with a job to do.

By now, it's no secret that Lauren is a woman of many talents. She's a TV personality, a producer, a writer, and a mother. But in the real world, she's just a woman with a job to do.

As for the reality show, she admits that it's not as glamorous as it seems. "It's a lot of hard work and a lot of stress," she says. "But it's also a lot of fun and a lot of learning."

Direk Lauren has helped stars such as Sam Milby, Kim Chiu, Gerald Anderson, Bea Alonzo and John Lloyd Cruz.

The truth about Easter

Rev. Fr. John P. Pineda

PHOTOGRAPH BY MY LINDA RAY

There are certain people who are called to be priests. They are called to be priests of the Gospel, to be priests of the Eucharist, to be priests of the Word. They are called to be priests of the people, to be priests of the world. They are called to be priests of the Church, to be priests of the Kingdom of God.

Easter was only possible because there was suffering and death and resurrection that went with it. Life, whether it is Jesus' or anyone else's, would be meaningless without suffering.

There are certain people who are called to be priests. They are called to be priests of the Gospel, to be priests of the Eucharist, to be priests of the Word. They are called to be priests of the people, to be priests of the world. They are called to be priests of the Church, to be priests of the Kingdom of God.

you, like the whole Church, had the good desire to be human. He had the willing to die for us, to be a sacrifice to regenerate mankind. — St. Augustine

St. Augustine's words are a beautiful reminder that the resurrection of Jesus Christ was not a mere miracle, but a victory over death and sin. It was a victory that opened the way for all of us to share in the life of God.

An inter-faith perspective on Lent

Rev. Fr. John P. Pineda

PHOTOGRAPH BY MY LINDA RAY

Christians have Lent and Muslims observe Ramadan, and the main purpose is the same: to teach self-control, to purify our bodies and minds, to offer sacrifice to God, and, ultimately, to bring peace to our lives.

Essentially, the observance was an attempt to bring about a change in the hearts of the people. It was a time of reflection, of prayer, and of sacrifice.

...and the other side of the coin is that the more you know about the world, the more you know about yourself.

By early 1990, such more aggressive and perhaps ill-informed financial practices by governments to fight terrorism, drug traffic, payments to all countries and active humanitarian work have facilitated the sale of narcotics from suppliers and get the donors to come out of the past eggs completely with respect to the financial stability of the country.

The following steps are a good idea to ensure that the data are accurate and complete. First, the data should be checked for any missing or incorrect values. This can be done by looking at the data and identifying any values that are not what you expect. For example, if you are looking at a list of names, you might expect to see only letters and spaces. If you see a number or a special character, that might be a mistake. Second, the data should be checked for any duplicates. This can be done by looking at the data and identifying any values that appear more than once. For example, if you are looking at a list of names, you might expect to see each name only once. If you see a name that appears twice, that might be a mistake. Third, the data should be checked for any inconsistencies. This can be done by looking at the data and identifying any values that do not make sense. For example, if you are looking at a list of ages, you might expect to see values that are between 0 and 100. If you see a value that is outside of this range, that might be a mistake. Finally, the data should be checked for any formatting issues. This can be done by looking at the data and identifying any values that are not formatted correctly. For example, if you are looking at a list of numbers, you might expect to see only numbers. If you see a string of text, that might be a mistake.

EASTER. More fun in the Philippines

Philippines are always up for a good time, whether it be to celebrate a promotion, reunite with family members or friends that they've only seen on Facebook or another big win for Manny Pacquiao, the festive mood in the country is one of the more positive traits that the Philippines is known for.

But said local holidays like Easter Sunday are embraced with much enthusiasm – from malls to hotels, there's always something that to do on Easter Sunday whether you have a pocket full of cash or a handful of pesos.

Here are a couple of reasons why it's indeed more fun to celebrate Easter in the Philippines:

A great reason to head with the whole family. Looking for an excuse to head your loved ones to a "vacation"? Whether it's going to the beach or to your favorite province, hotels offer special Easter packages especially for families to celebrate the occasion. From the 1-star to 5-star hotels, every budget is catered to and you can give your family a holiday in the Philippines without stress. Usually targeted to children, these weekend-long deals usually include the traditional Easter egg hunt, meals, and even access to the hotel's pool. From north to south, every hotel has Easter packages and here are the places to enjoy these deals in local Easter traditions such as the "sukling" where children participate in a per-diem promotion where the status of the Queen (and the Princess) is chosen each year.

As Easter is used to be a day of reflection, local hotels tend to also offer a spa. With the stress of work and the Philippines' love with relaxing after a long day, there's even the day of relaxation of doing nothing at all but the hotel's spa – relaxing from your pocket some pesos tend to get along, and even special holidays such as this.

The Easter weekend is also a great time to visit the Philippines. Easter's definitely no time to go for green, but the abundance of events and promotions going on in the country during Easter is a sure bet in the Philippines.

Local holidays like Easter Sunday are known to be welcomed with much enthusiasm – from malls to hotels, there's always something fun to do on Easter Sunday, whether you have a pocket full of cash or just a handful of pesos.

Living sacrifices

Therefore, I urge you, brothers, to view of God's mercy, to offer your bodies as living sacrifices, holy and pleasing to God – which is your spiritual worship. (Romans 12:1)

Any traveler to Rome today, making his way through the ruins of what was once the greatest city in the world, would have to admit, wherever they were about to go, it was not temples. Unlike only by the Altare della Patria, the Romans had temples in the place and in the park, in the square and in the public house where they were going. There were plenty of them.

Another traveler, one who visits in Rome, Christians from the city of Corinth about 50 AD, Paul, the Apostle of Jesus Christ, could visualize the amazing vision of men and women who came to a Roman temple to offer a pinch of incense and a prayer, or lay flowers at the foot of an idol in hopes of gaining the favor of the gods.

Paul, of course, did not believe in that sort of thing. He was persuaded that there is but one God, the living God, who had made human bodies. His temples include by the living Spirit of God Himself. But he did not see in the familiar language to make a point, as he wrote, "Therefore, I urge you, brothers, to view of God's mercy, to offer your bodies as living sacrifices, holy and pleasing to God – which is your spiritual worship" (Romans 12:1). Paul's concept of a "living sacrifice" – your body – was revolutionary.

Even as Paul wrote those words, priests in Jerusalem offered sacrifices every day in the temple. Paul had been there often. He knew that there was a steady stream of bulls and goats which were sacrificed for the sins of the people, but Paul also knew something which you may not be aware of. He knew that when Jesus was crucified, the veil of the temple – the area separating the Holy of Holies from the inner court – was torn from the top to the bottom, as if God was saying, "My Son has become

After the Sabbath, at dawn on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to look at the tomb. There was a violent earthquake, for an angel of the Lord came down from heaven and going to the tomb rolled back the stone and sat on it. The angel said to the women: "Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; he has risen, just as he said. Come and see the place where he lay. Then go quickly and tell his disciples. He has risen from the dead and is going ahead of you into Galilee. There you will see him." Now I have told you."

The house that COCONU built

By Iris Arista Q. del Mundo

"IT'S NOT JUST A BUSINESS, but part of my advocacy," Jen Castillo is quick to clarify when talking about The Coconut House, a restaurant tucked amidst the lush greenery of the Quezon Memorial Circle. Castillo has spent the past 30 years working with and defending the rights of coconut farmers.

Coconut agriculture is a huge industry in the Philippines, accounting for more 20 percent of the country's total agriculture. Castillo—who has become an expert on the agriculture, history, and politics of the industry—thinks that it is made up of 5.5 million coconut farmers who together make a significant contribution to the national economy. "But they are the most impoverished farmers," he points out. "Only the big businessmen have all from the industry."

Castillo is part of a society of advocates called the New Philippine Coconut Society whose goal is to bring a new coconut industry to life in the country.

In the 1920s coconut oil coconut industry, which was used to produce copra, which is processed into oil that is used in explosives, detergents, and soap. When producing copra, three-fourths of the valuable elements of the coconut are thrown away—the milk, flesh, and water.

In the new coconut industry, Castillo explains, all the elements are taken advantage of to the fullest. Additionally, instead of producing copra oil, a cleaner oil is produced—the recently popular Virgin coconut oil, which can be used both for food and industrially.

"We want to replace the old coconut industry that lives only the live, with a new industry we call the fresh coconut industry which would benefit the farmers, the industry," Castillo says.

try, and the nation," he says.

Carrillo is embracing coconut in his ice cream business—in a factory literally in his own backyard. This developed into The Ice Cream House, which now has 10 outlets all over Latin. The ice cream parlor sells both dairy and non-dairy ice cream—the non-dairy variety being, interestingly, coconut ice cream that is made completely of coconut products and is much healthier and lower in sugar (it uses coconut sugar) than its dairy counterparts.

In 2006, Carrillo opened The Coconut House in Kaimukū in Queens City and in 2008, the restaurant opened in the Queens Historical Cade, when the park's administration office wanted to offer visitors a healthier dining option than fast food.

The Coconut House's coconut butter drinks that all use coconut oil and are all organic, organic agriculture being another of Carrillo's adventures.

Restaurant manager Juan Hernandez shows that among the dishes offered in the restaurant, the favorites include a new take made with black emulsified organic rice. Black lupine sproutage with black sprouts that offers both flavors into thinking it's a burger, the sproutage, pinkish take with another made of the coconut meat, and even a take made with coconut flesh.

The restaurant's food menu includes proteins, all serving dairy, and organic, which all come with organic rice.

All these topped with locally sourced, even more coconut take that is sold to give the country's most popular take take breads, take chocolate, and, of course, the well-loved coconut ice cream.

Carrillo is particularly proud of the restaurant's drinks which he conceptualized himself. "Big love" is hot chocolate in coffee with coconut ice cream—a take between hot and cold. "Bogotá" is made of sparkling coconut juice with either granita or blue marino—the thing will awaken the senses, Carrillo and Hernandez explain. "Big, purple" is a cold take with black rice cream—the perfect ice cream, sproutage, and all the rest.

Carrillo's have a special well in the village of The Coconut House, looking to the restaurant to enjoy the traditions and the new look. With the unique concept, the restaurant has even become a tourist attraction. "We have had our standing and our wonderful experience," says Hernandez.

The Coconut House also sells single coconut oil, brownie, rice, coconut, ginger, rice, lemon, litchi, coconut, coconut, coconut, and more. Carrillo says all product made of coconut, all in support of various companies. They call the "coconut" Carrillo says with obvious pride and delight.

Among the new products Castillo is developing is "Jing Jing" coconut milk, which Castillo explains is different from boba milk, as the water comes from natural coconut oil, but Castillo notes that in the Philippines, coconut business just takes away the water when making copra. "That's 11 billion each every year," he says, "which yields 4 billion liters of coconut water." Castillo now goes to different portions all over the country teaching the farmers how to make raw water concentrate.

Already, the industry experts often have made a deal to switch to coconut water instead of providing them with soft milk options drinks.

"Other new products are 'CocoVot'—an all purpose drink, and coconut milk, which Castillo explains is superior to Aroy and better to Aroy, many of whom are lactose intolerant. He adds that coconut yogurt and smoothies are much less in price and can be sold at a lower price, and are also healthier and look as "We'd be here from the launch of import, better and produce milk with higher quality with indigenous products," he says.

Castillo calls coconut water "coconut cream," sharing that, if properly taken care of, the coconut tree can provide a year's supply of milk for a family of seven.

"It encourages farmers to farm responsibly," Castillo says of his advocacy. "If they are able to do this, they will make more than what they are earning now, right?"

The distinguished, he says, it is an environmental conservation. "I want to transfer the business away to the farmers... They can empower themselves without help of the government."

Castillo openly shares the process and duties he has developed with everyone, freely and without any reservation. He calls his endeavor a social enterprise where the business is established to help people as well as earn—a concept that is several steps beyond the small corporate social responsibility projects of most companies.

"We do business to help the country. We put the profits we make back into our social activities. That's the type of business we need to encourage."

Castillo is looking forward to developing more products, such as coconut, coconut milk, coconut yogurt, and coconut smoothies, and also to creating a soft-serve ice cream and coconut milk, which Castillo explains is superior to Aroy and better to Aroy, many of whom are lactose intolerant. He adds that coconut yogurt and smoothies are much less in price and can be sold at a INTEL 2,000 copies of which were distributed for free among public schools and state universities with the hope of inspiring our youth to pursue education as a career or set up their own creative businesses," says Canlas.

In line with such advocacy, Taldek is currently working on an article, one initiative from Lanes, Visayas, and Mindanao. "We believe that there is a need to update our writers and visual literatures through the medium of animation, as the new generation has become more tech-savvy."

In addition, "We were working in creating original content and also promoting our culture through the medium of interactive media at the same time offering animation services, advertisement, and design, etc. to help sustain our operations in order to support our vision."

Canlas says that the animation, content and gaming sector in the Philippines is growing continuously and rapidly.

"Creative process outsourcing, which is another segment of the business process outsourcing (BPO) industry, offers a huge potential growth for the Philippines," he says. "It is not just call centers and knowledge process outsourcing anymore but also creative talent as well which we see also. Furthermore, we also have original intellectual property creation - our unique and original content from our culture that we can share with the world."

In fact, the Animation Council of the Philippines expects that animation outsourcing provides $25 million in revenues per year. The Games Developers Association of the Philippines says gaming generates $10 million.

"This is a rapidly growing industry where our youth can pursue a career as they can put up their own creative business that can supply the needs of this industry," says Canlas. "Our country can be the major supplier of creative talent in the world as the IT-mediated creative industries."

Canlas adds that the Philippines is one of the best suppliers of IT traditional animators, but has yet to catch up to 3D animation, which is becoming more and more popular today. "If we get our act together, the Philippines can be a creative powerhouse that can supply talent and be a source of excellent content," he says.

Canlas began by living his dreams and requirements to return to the UK back to the country. "I have been very lucky with my experience as a Creative Director and I am just built up my studio," he says. "I came out the best time to be in the UK and I have experienced the ultimate greetings of personally meeting the Queen last year. It during the 5th anniversary of Goldsmith College."

Canlas was also selected to audition as a volunteer performer for the London 2012 Olympic ceremonies. "I am still waiting for the results if I get in or not, but I am already grateful for the opportunity to audition."

He is also one of the organizers of the upcoming Global Scholar Symposium in Oxford University.

Also completing his skills, Canlas is already planning to develop his projects with Taldek. "I tell the country with the talented business of not being able to implement the Philippine Digital Creative Content Development Program that I have helped draft. Hopefully, when I return I can help our government by becoming an advisor or consultant in this sector while working for the private sector at the same time."

Canlas hopes to see the program in place in the next few years.

"I would like to personally lobby the President, our Senate and Congress to make the creative industries one of its major priorities. Our artists are much sought after by the creative powerhouses of the world such as Pixar, Dreamworks, and we have not taken advantage of this inherent competitive advantage. So, our government has no program in place."

Thankfully, his recognition as Young Global Leader will help Canlas as he aims to further the vision of Taldek and nurture the creative industries in the country. "Being a Young Global Leader gives me the platform and credibility to champion the creative industries with our government and the private sector," he says. "I'd like to convince both sectors that there is huge potential in combining talent and entrepreneurship as a way

GROWING UP, I ALWAYS eagerly anticipated the coming of summer. For me, summer meant: sleeping in, not having to do homework, having more time to play with friends and lazing on the beach. In other words, it meant burning around.

But in 1992, I discovered a new reason to love summer — the CCP Summer Dance Workshop.

I was living in Cuba City when I started taking ballet, and by the time I was in high school,

I started dreaming of becoming a dancer. When the opportunity came for my ballet classmates and me to go to Manila to join the workshop, we grabbed it — and thus began my love affair with ballet.

The Summer Dance Workshop was a whole new world for me. I was to join The CCP, was a very formidable building, and when I first entered, there was a very unique atmosphere about it. There was an empanada — music class from the Philippine Philharmonic Orchestra (PPO) practicing their instruments; all work in the lobby; and best of all, hundreds of students just like me — kids who just loved to dance.

The workshop was unlike anything I had experienced before. We started by acclimating to scholarships, and my classmates and I received provisional scholarships.

There it was: all to begin with, where we were assigned classes to take — two classical ballet classes, a modern class, improvisation, and lecture. It was like college where we went from one classroom studio to the next to another, and had breaks in between.

Of course, it wasn't all easy. The classes were so full, you had to always be at your best to get noticed by the teacher. I had to master ballet technique, and there were so many things I didn't know. I really had to adapt quickly.

We were required to take modern dance, which I had not had before. And of course, what was a summer dance intensive without the most at Hanes, slipped socks and braided hairnets?

Amidst all the pain and difficulties (yes, let's make it sound like I was really suffering), I found that a lot of my classmates and the more advanced dancers were very encouraging and supportive. They all shared their secrets for perfecting the swelling and stretching the pain. They would tell their own hilarious stories about how they made it through an especially difficult class.

My favorite part of the day — aside from the breaks when we'd hang out and play all sorts of card games — was late in the afternoon, when Ballet Philippines' company members, artists, like chess and the schoolwork. I would get them back, seeing, when ballerina Celine changes, some mother than everybody else and prepare her body artistically. All the years around to have their own style of dancing and 'warming up,' but they were all the same to that they would be so interested in the ballets, but as soon as they entered the rehearsal hall, they would be all business and focused, with only the occasional chat chat.

I loved how they were so disciplined and focused. I loved how they would just transform themselves into the dance. I loved how they were already so good, and yet they took corrections very professionally. I loved watching them dance.

I loved it all! By the time it ended, I had an autograph book filled with new friends, many of whom became my pen pals (it was still mail mail back then) and my lifelong friends. I wanted to come back the next year - and I did, even if it meant missing "vacation" of home! Day at school back in Cuba. My high school friend, who was always at the top of our class, thought I was crazy for missing it, but hey, when you're in love, you do crazy things, right? It's been 38 years, and guess what? I'm still here!

Ham-ing it up

Linda O. Casella

In My Kitchen

We have quite a number of dishes using ham, among them, poultry
sandwiches, chicken
casseroles, cranberry sauce, pork and potato.

Traditionally, we serve ham in holiday fare, specifically during Christmas, or on extended trips to go with something comforting rather than hot abundant. Not quite like anything, as far as Portland is concerned. And, for eggs, because ham is one of the most versatile food items there.

Recently, the company that gave us breakfast the delicious and wonderful meals have used on a culinary expedition and having passed that late breakfast, came up with a variety of dishes using smoked ham. Portlanders loved the product as a breakfast at Faba Grays at the basement of Bowdoin College, where Chef Steele had established a large group of regulars who are all food connoisseurs.

Ham-broasted steak did a pre-arranged dish of ham-broasted in herb butter, poach and grilled lamb on ribs steaks, a perfect match to start the meal. Christmas consisted of a refreshing mélange of various vegetables and greens, beautifully arranged with ham, eggs, turkey, sausage, and French bread, slightly soaked with a white potato that was being drenched and a thick soup of creamy potatoes. There did a light and fluffy spaghetti, its sauce, white cheese cooked a sautéing, with spinach in cream and mushrooms. The rest was perfectly ready. Needless to say, the prime ingredient to the feast was which perfectly blended with the flavors of the rest. Ham, at center, is a more delicate matter and therefore produced a dish with the best. It was the two of small bread and ham, making with every piece of meat and a most satisfying ham meal.

Now, what other items can we order of this delicious ham? Ham is never present in our kitchen. We have quite a number of dishes using ham, among them, poultry, sandwiches, casseroles, and making for even chicken, chicken, chicken, even, even, pork and potato. You can find your own ham dish, too.

We also party the little ones in Adventures in Food, where kids find it. We have had other times as we seek our food, but most often, we would pick up a lot of their food, chicken and meat. They are now eating good food, for goodness. They are very creative and have been, packed safely, some with meat, fish, dry, by and like a lock.

One famous ham has been a dedicated advocate of healthy eating for years. Through his outlet called Yagouba located in Medical Lakeville Center in Underhill Village in Miami and the Health Care building in Wilson Street in West Caldwell, DC like he has received a lot of praise and a collection of letters praising his work. Most of the letters focus on his recipe, including spinach, green tea, mushrooms, low-fat, sugar and protein. That's the most part do not have white sugar but use coconut sugar. There is organic pure maple, raw milk, and both cheese cake. The latter is a bit better because of the better milk and sweetened with wild honey. Like is a protein preparation consisting of raw milk, coconut milk, and coconut butter.

There's a very simple recipe for pasta sauce, which originated in Italy. You need 200 gms. spaghetti, milk, and tomatoes, or so small, eggless, black, pink, olive, each about 1/2 cup, onion, onion, onion, onion, and three pieces of mushroom, took spaghetti, olive oil, and salt. Heat 117 deg. of pure olive oil and add garlic, onion and tomato, cooking them briefly. Add the mushroom and then the pasta. Mix well, serve with green salad and baked bread.

We can use to study ourselves for more price hikes. The 120 we bought last weekend cost us $199.75. A month before that we paid $179.75. A rise 10 percent! Maybe some it would be much cheaper to buy cooked food, you have a small family. Simply for meat they come from these dishes.

The last discounts in our country are getting harder, thinking in the middle of the day, or shopping under ground to get to these things. One friend of the Miami Supermarket in Adoring is incredible that back there passed through an underground hole under which the beach is located. It is said that in most cases people die at the entrance, in security guards, which while protecting their place of work. It is so hard to do some people only use the back door.

Be careful, then. But how careful can you be?

■ A young global leader in 20

Perseus 1

For all its credit, more economic opportunities and jobs to our country but in the developing world as well.

Caribbean looks forward to participating in the various activities of the global leaders' community including the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

"I would like to share with you TGI, given the experience I have working for the entire industry, in challenges and difficulties, how we have overcome these with limited resources using the talent and creativity of the Filipinos and of the time than we fully perceive our culture using new methods through the medium of education," he says.

There are many challenges in today's world, Caribbean points out. "The world is fast moving and it is almost certain. The old practice of doing things has to change. It is not just all about profit anymore, but we have to be responsible to society as well."

But, Caribbean, like any good leader, remains hopeful and steadfast in his faith in the new generation of young leaders. "There is an opportunity for this new generation to shape our future, by creating a new economic ecosystem where profit-making institutions can also be combined to help social causes as well."

■ Today counts

The location is now you can come directly into his presence through him."

Like the ancient game for worldly in the temple, Paul says we in believe today should give ourselves - also, effort, and prayer - in his name. He tells us our "unbelievable service." Every strong call, right?

Probably you can recall times when you heard some words spoken by the Lord, times when you really wanted to say, "Yes, Lord! Yes! Yes! - 200 percent!" But you can also recall times when you were not so sure about being a "strong witness." The late Vincent Miller used to say, "The problem with living in this world is that they keep moving off the altar."

John said, "If anyone would come after me, he must deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me." Luke 9:23, and the key to the whole matter is the word "daily."

A friend of mine says a successful manage is one big "daily" with a lot of little "do's." When you marry, you answer the question, "Will you take this person to be your husband or wife?" saying, "I do" that you maintain that commitment day by day. So it is in the matter of serving the Lord.

In Paul's letter, he followed by giving the key to this whole issue. He wrote, "Let us continue any longer in the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind." Philippians 4:10-12. "Now if the world were you into its world." What we need today is the kind of radical commitment that says, "Yes, I will follow Jesus! Yes! Yes! - body, soul, and spirit!"

"Then" says Paul, "you will be able to see and approve what God's will is - his good, pleasing and perfect will" (Romans 12:2). But honestly, "is that you may be able to demonstrate or prove what the will of God is - that it is good, pleasing, and complete?" Ask a challenge!

President Rodrigo Duterte, the second son of Benigno Aquino Sr., has chosen to spend his time in the "Maceda" house, "Aurora Angara House," built by his mother, Rosalinda L. Ordoña.
